

ABSTRACT

A system comprises a first node having an associated cache including data having an associated first cache state. The first cache state is capable of identifying the first node as being an ordering point for serializing requests from other nodes for the data.